

RICHARD MILLE

Richard Mille, MissionH24's partner

Richard Mille is joining MissionH24. The prototypes from the programme initiated by the Automobile Club de l'Ouest and GreenGT, whose aim is to prepare the ground for the arrival of electric-hydrogen-powered vehicles at the start of the 2024 24 Hours of Le Mans, will carry the colours of the prestigious watchmaker in 2020.

MissionH24 and its racing team H24 Racing are delighted to welcome a new partner – Richard Mille - who joins Total, Michelin-Symbio and Plastic Omnium. Until the end of the 2020 season the Swiss brand renowned for its prestige watches will be part of the programme initiated by the Automobile Club de l'Ouest and GreenGT. The two prototypes, the LMPH2G and the new H24, presented today at Le Mans during the ACO press conference, have a packed schedule ahead of them that includes private testing, appearances at public events and meetings as well as demonstrations. Richard Mille, a tech-savvy visionary who presides over the destiny of the brand to which he gave his name, has followed with interest the development of the project since its launch in 2018 and has decided to use it as a vector for his communications.

Jean-Michel Bouresche

MissionH24 operations manager, H24 Racing Team Principal

"It's an honour and a pleasure to see Richard Mille, the prestigious watchmaker known all over the world, joining the MissionH24 programme and the H24 Racing team. Richard himself is a passionate car fan who loves the motor car, motor racing and innovation. He shares values with us including involvement and very high standards in action, which find the perfect environment for their expression with MissionH24 and H24 Racing."
